THOUSANDS WATCH AS ARCHBISHOP IS BURIED

Throngs Line Chicago Streets on Way to Cemetery—Notable Gathering at Rites.

Chicago, July 15.—Scenes such as were never witnessed in Chicago before attended the funeral today of the late Archbishop James Edward Quigley, whose body was laid at rest in Mount Carmel Cemetery beside that of his predecessor, the late Archbishop Feeney.

While the Cathedral of the Holy Name, where the last rites were said, was less than 2,000 persons, a throng was gathered about the building during the services which was estimated at 50,000 persons. Fully 50,000 more lined the streets and filled the windows and balconies along which the procession passed on its way to the cemetery. Gathered at the cemetery to await the arrival of the cortege was an even greater throng than had stood in the streets around the cathedral earlier in the day.

Representatives of almost every Catholic diocese in America were gathered in the cathedral as Monsignor John Bonzano, apostolic delegate to the United States, began the celebration of solemn pontifical requiem mass at 10 o'clock.

On a casket throne at the left of the altar was James Cardinal Gibbons, of Baltimore. Seated near him were the prelates of ten archdioceses of the country, while in the center aisle sat more than 1,000 priests. Archbishop Edward J. Hanna, of San Francisco, a close personal friend of the late archbishop, delivered the funeral sermon.

Berlin's Apology in Nebraskan Case Same As That Made to Small Countries.

ATTACK WAS A 'MISTAKE'

Germany Says Nothing Distinguished Vessel from Enemy's Craft.

Desiring that the United States should view the torpedoing of the American steamship Nebraskan as an "unfortunate accident," the German government has expressed its regret for the act of its submarine commander and declared its readiness to pay for the damages suffered.

A memorandum to this effect was received at the State Department yesterday from Ambassador Gerard, at Berlin, to whom it was handed by the Berlin foreign office.

All Doubt Removed.

The German government excuses the act of the submarine commander on the theory that in the absence of any markings on the Nebraskan, the commander was justified in assuming that it must have been an enemy ship and in attacking accordingly.

While this theory and this assumption are considered most repugnant to the principles for which the United States is contending in the submarine issue, it is not doubted that the German offer of compensation will be accepted.

The matter will be discussed informally today by Secretary Lansing and Count Bernstorff, the German ambassador, Mr. Lansing telephoned the ambassador that it had come and invited him to call today.

Officials are wondering whether efforts to collect the compensation promised will lead to the same entanglements as in the case of Germany's admitted liability and promised to pay, but the two governments are now hopelessly at odds because Germany's intention that the case be referred to a prize court.

That it is Germany's intention to excuse as a mistake such attacks on the future in the conclusion drawn from the memorandum received yesterday. It has been noted that the German government's statement that their vessels were sunk by mistake and would be paid for, particularly flagrant, as the vessel was west-bound in ballast, and the attack took place at twilight.

New York, July 15.—Harry Smith, one of the game's outstanding catchers, was released yesterday at his own request. Smith came from the Savannah club of the Southern Association at the close of last season, and for a while he looked very promising. DOORS CLOSED ON GOUGING INQUIRY

Arguments in Probe Ended. Court Ready for Its Deliberations.

SAVED BY 'ORIGINAL SIN'

Judge Advocate Waits Differentiates Between Middies Who Used "Dope" in Examinations.

Special to The Washington Herald. Annapolis, Md., July 15.—Arguments before the naval Court of Inquiry, which for more than three days has been engaged in a probe of the "gouging" scandal and other irregularities in scholastic work at the Naval Academy, and which has attracted nationwide interest, were completed this afternoon and tomorrow the court will begin its deliberations.

The case was submitted to the court following an extensive plea of Lieut. Commander W. C. Watts, the judge advocate and government prosecutor and counter arguments, in which Representative James Hay and Robert Moss, of counsel for the original seven defendants, had a say.

saved by "Original Sin."

The judge advocate reviewed the great volume of evidence in the most minute detail and in his final summing up, asked for a conviction of the original seven defendants on the charge of "gouging." In other words Judge Advocate Watts maintained the same view as to the degree of guilt of the accused midshipmen as that set forth in the recommendation of the court, that is, those midshipmen who saw the white mimeograph sheet or "original sin," which contained the matter that later developed as more guilty than those who, while they had much the same information, did not see the mimeograph sheet.

Attacked by Watts.

The midshipmen for the conviction of whom the judge advocate argued were Ralph McK. Nelson, one of the "star" members of the class that was graduated in June 7, the remaining defendants were given a clean bill by the government prosecutor, because of circumstances as to guilty knowledge.

SHIPPERS UNITE IN TRADE CLAIM

Meat and Cotton Men Make Combined Protest Against England.

EXPECT CONGRESS' AID

Political Influence of Trade Men Will Be Big Factor for Opening Seas for Commerce.

Following the representations made at the State Department in behalf of the American packers, whose trade with some of the neutral countries of Europe has practically been closed as a result of British practices during the war, it became known yesterday that a movement is on foot to assemble in a convention of protest the meat, vegetable, and other interests affected adversely by British policies.

The packers have already been approached by men identified with the cotton growers of the South in regard to the proposed gathering. It is understood that the meat men are quite agreeable to the suggestion, and that live-stock interests will be brought in with them.

Have Eye on Congress.

An organized protest on the part of all the American interests involved would, it is believed, be most difficult for the administration to ignore, particularly if it is pointed out, as it is in London, that the assembly of Congress. There are already signs that the new Congress will come prepared to support all sorts of proposals calculated to bring pressure to bear on Great Britain.

Officials most familiar with the situation feel confident that concessions by Great Britain are likely to come just as soon as the American interests realize the extent and depth of the feeling among large groups of American interests and appreciate the possible results of the political pressure they will be able to exert.

It has been decided that the State Department will act in behalf of the packers and their allies. The department had now set on foot inquiries in England and neutral countries adjacent to Germany for the purpose of verifying reports of conditions made by the packers.

According to the reports, it is virtually impossible to do business with the Scandinavian countries and Holland, all on account of the new second-class, which is particularly galling to the packers, who have a short cargo of meat as a result and has appointed a committee to deal with the situation.

Representatives of the packers had another conference with Chandler Anderson, of the State Department, yesterday, and will later send him documents supporting their contention as to existing conditions.

Peaks in Alsace Conquered;

Chasseurs Landed in Paris

By FRANKLIN P. MERRICK.

Special Correspondent of The Washington Herald. Paris, July 15.—Recent successes in the French in Alsace were due to the daring assaults of the Alpine troops. They captured the mountain fastnesses which had been the stronghold of the Germans.

Full credit for the Alsace victories is given to the Alpine chasseurs in an official "excitment" narrative issued by the war office today.

For the attacks upon the German strongholds upon the crests of the Vosges the French made long preparations, building a railway for the transport of the mountain troops and their equipment.

One hundred and fifty tons of material were carried over this railway daily until enough had been collected to assure success in the operations against Metz and Sondernach.

The communique:

Long in Preparation.

"The successes of the French troops in Alsace around Metz and Sondernach were the result of the long and careful preparation of the infantry and Alpine troops."

"The Germans had, according to prisoners taken by us, fortified their positions so strongly that the slightest counter-attack would have been repulsed."

"The preparations we made for attacking these strongholds were long and careful. We had to build twenty miles of railway lines, over which we carried material and ammunition weighing at least 150 tons. We also had to build many miles of communicating trenches."

"On June 15 we delivered an attack from both sides of the Pech de la Vierge, the infantry charging with magnificent courage, while bands played the 'Marseillaise.' The German artillery deluged our lines with projectiles, but could not break down the attack."

Brankhof Captured.

"We took a great part of the Brankhof trenches, and at the crest of the hill we captured the enemy's machine guns. We had taken up our positions and were ready to attack. All the prisoners seemed to be in good physical condition, but depressed and demoralized."

U. S. SILENT ON ARMS PROTEST BY AUSTRIA

Attitude of Government Toward Munitions Shipments to Allies Unchanged by Latest Note.

Representations by Austria-Hungary to this government in objection to the trade in munitions of war now being carried on with the allies will not alter the attitude of the administration. Officials have not yet seen any reason to change their conviction that this trade is not only permissible by law, but that to inhibit it now would be to commit an unequal act in aid of the enemies of Great Britain and allied countries.

The Austria-Hungarian note was received early in July, but was made public in Vienna Wednesday for the first time. Its publication there following an inquiry of the United States government as to whether it had any objections to its being given out. Secretary Lansing replied that there were no objections so far as this government was concerned.

It has not yet been determined whether there will be any reply to the note. Decision on this point awaits the return of President Wilson from Cornhill. It is certain, however, that if a reply is made it will adhere closely to the declarations made in the President's letter to the German Ambassador in reply to a similar protest from him and in the Bryan letter to Senator Stone discussing American neutrality.
